God Laughs!

For several weeks, I’ve been focusing on Psalm 2. It has become a source of comfort and reassurance to me every time a disturbing headline surfaces about the current administration. I envision the Ancient of Days seated on His throne. He beckons me to come near and rest. I draw near and take a position at His feet, resting my head on His knee.

He reminds me that He is still in charge regardless of what’s happening in the world. The “times of the gentiles” is nearing fulfillment-the kings and rulers are conspiring, and nations are gathering together to do battle against the Lord. God laughs! I consider His response and

I laugh too! Men plot to gain power, to control people, wealth, and countries; futile! Their leader (unknown to them) is the old serpent, Satan. His goal is to destroy humanity, God’s prized creation. But Satan is a fallen angel, a created, fallen angel and is already defeated. The only humans he’ll succeed in destroying are those who have vehemently rejected the Lord’s gift of salvation.

At the appointed time the Lord will return - and the rulers of this world, along with the wicked and depraved, will become a feast for the birds to dine on. And God’s people will inherit the earth.

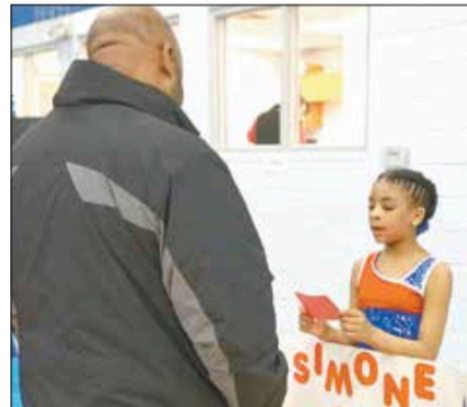

I can face whatever comes today, or tomorrow because I know the one who holds the future of mankind. And He who holds the future has me, and all those who belong to Christ, in the palm of His hand.
